Report of the Managers of the "Home for Aged Women."

On this, our annual meeting, our thoughts naturally revert to the early history of the Home. We look back through the years—recall all the perplexities which have met us on the way—all the struggles through which we have passed—all the difficulties we have had to overcome, in order to see this institution established on a safe and sure basis, and while the list of troubles may seem long, when we cast our eyes on the opposite page, we find that the number of blessings has far out-balanced them.

Courage and energy have been given for every needed effort—willing hearts and ready hands have been found for every emergency—we have met with liberal givers and often from least expected sources, generous aid has come.

Success has crowned effort, as it surely must every forward movement for the good of humanity.

While reviewing all these experiences we cannot fail to remember a day famous in the history of Bangor and deservedly dear to all who are interested in this Home.

On Bangor's Centennial day, which may very properly be called our birth-day, the first step was taken, which resulted in the establishment, a few years later, of a philanthropy, which we have good reason to believe will go on, ever increasing its usefulness and blessing as the years pass by.

The idea of some organized charity, had for some time floated dimly through the minds of many, but it was an unformed idea, having as yet no shape or purpose. On that gala-day, amid all the tumult and excitement of glad bells, waving banners and gay processions which thronged our streets, there were some whose thoughts were diverted from the merry scene and looking with almost prophetic vision through the onward years, they saw the good which might be accomplished, and then and there resolved that, (to use their own words,) "the time had come to inaugurate measures for relieving the infirmities of age."

It was a wise resolution—a crowning glory of the day. It is equally fitting and as truly wise, for those who to-day are immersed in the ceaseless activities of life, or who are borne swiftly along the rushing tide of its pleasures, to pause and consider the condition of those, for whom life's activities are no longer possible and for whom its pleasures are no more (all the, but dim, misty visions, which memory sometimes calls back from the long vanished past.

It is wise to familiarize ourselves with every form of earthly want or sorrow, that we may learn the great lesson of human brotherhood, and in the exercise of kindly sympathy, find how much more blessed it is to give, than to receive.

Coming, as we now do, to the commencement of our twelfth year of practical operation, how can it be with other than thankful hearts?

The past year has been full of blessing. None of those who were with us when the year began, are missing. It is true that some linger under great infirmity, having long since passed the "three score years and ten." They have come to a realization of the truth of the saying, that if beyond that, "is labor and sorrow." We believe, however, that all which can be done to alleviate the discomfort of such a lot, is done, and that the path leading toward the end is made smooth and peaceful.

The whole number who have been admitted to the Home is twenty-two, of this number four have died; eighteen now remain.

The application of Mrs. Ann Beckwith to become a member of the Home, dated August 15th, was presented at the meeting following, held September 1st, and a vote to admit her was passed. Mrs. Beckwith was a resident of Bangor during her childhood and the early portion of her married life. After long years spent in the far West, having become widowed and childless, aged and alone, her thoughts turned to the home of her youth, with longing desire that the closing scenes in her pilgrimage might be passed here.

We little thought while we were speaking the words and making the plans which would welcome her to this resting place, that she had already passed beyond its need and had entered into the "rest which remaineth." She had gained the better home in the Father's house. Her earthlife closed August thirty-first.

During the past year three life-memberships have been added, making the whole number since our organization sixty-four. Of this number forty-five remain. It is earnestly hoped that more of our citizens may become life-members, by the payment of twenty-five dollars, or at least members of the corporation, by the payment of one dollar per year.

Now that the family is fast becoming infirm and helpless, the expenditure for additional assistance, makes a large inroad upon our means and a great degree of watchfulness is requisite, in order to keep the expenses within our income.

In the early spring, it became apparent that very soon, many of our number would not be able to meet with the family, because of the effort required to go up and down the stairs. To obviate this evil, it was deemed best to finish the ground floor of the extension. An efficient committee was chosen and six nice rooms made ready. The occupants of these rooms, can now mingle with the family at the table and in social ways, which they could not possibly have done, but for these improvements.

The funds required to meet this expenditure, were obtained by a Fair, or "Paper Festival," as it was styled, held in Norombega Hall, the 13th and 14th of February last, the net proceeds of which exceeded five hundred dollars.

We have received from Mr. Albert Holton, Administrator, the sum of two hundred dollars, and from Mr. and Mrs. J. S. Webb, a kind remembrance of ten dollars.

We have been pleased to learn that we were remembered in the will of the late Walter Brown, by a generous bequest to be paid at a later day. Mr. Brown by this act, gave substantial proof of the deep interest he had always professed in the Institution, in the management of which, his life-long companion is still a valued and beloved member.

Another topic to which we gladly refer, is the proposal made by the mayor and aldermen, to constitute the Home their agent for the disbursement of the "Wakefield Fund," which proposal we voted to accept August fourth.

As this subject does not seem to be fully understood by the public, and as it is one with which we are so intimately connected, it may not be amiss to briefly state some points in reference to it.

One of our large-hearted fellow-citizens, whose kindly spirit, clear judgment and long experience were sufficient guarantee that whatever he attempted would be done wisely and well, arranged a plan whereby he might see while here, the good which wealth can accomplish, in helping to lift the burdens from the weak and helpless, in giving bread to the hungry and comfort to the lonely and weary-hearted. He gave to the city the sum of ten thousand dollars, the income of which should be used under specified conditions, for the benefit of needy women, without distinction of race, color, or religion. By the advice of the donor, the city entrusted the distribution of this income to the managers of the Home, a trust which they willingly assumed and hope to faithfully execute.

In the short time which has elapsed since they commenced work, relief and comfort have been carried to many homes and encouragement to many hearts.

By the terms of this gift, fifty dollars is to be added to the treasury of the Home each year.

Such unselfish philanthropy brings its reward even here, but its best recompense awaits the giver, in the life which lies beyond this.

The daily routine of our Home life has been much as in the preceding years.

Our faithful Matron, Miss S. E. Patten, is still with us, relieving the managers of many cares by her untiring watchfulness.

For our own sakes we trust the day may be long in coming, when the tried and true friends and physicians of this Institution, Drs. Field and Jefferds, shall retire from active labor.

Two Sabbaths in each month religious services are held, and by the kindness of our neighbor and friend, Rev. Mr. Harriman, we are this year relieved from much care on this subject, as he has offered to see that we are not without some one to serve on these occasions. We wish it to be understood that all neighbors and friends are more than welcome at these services.

Our thanks are cordially given to all who have, in any way aided us, or expressed sympathy in the cause. To the publishers of daily papers we are truly grateful for many favors, and also to kind and generous neighbors, who have often given tokens of their interest in the Home and its members.

In regard to our financial affairs, no words are needed here, as our Treasurer's report covers the whole ground, but we should hardly be true to ourselves and the trust committed to us, were we to close this report without making some appeal to those on whom the great responsibility of using wealth, has been laid by One who has said, "the silver and the gold are mine."

While charities are prevented from coming up to their full standard of efficiency for want of means, the fact is evident that some degree of ignorance or indifference prevails as to their need. It is very desirable for this institution to have a larger sustaining fund, that we may extend its benefits to a larger number, and that there need be no anxiety from time to time, concerning ways and means of living. We would very much prefer not to be obliged to call upon upon the public by any special means, like fairs or entertainments, for additions to our income, but to leave that field clear for younger organizations.

How shall this result be accomplished? What can we do for the cause? These are questions which each one must answer to and for himself, for they apply not to the members of the Corporation alone, but to our citizens generally. Surely we would all choose to bear our part in the world's work—to have the world better and happier for our having lived in it.

There is a great deal of wisdom in the resolve which some one has expressed in these words: "I will never let an opportunity to say a kind word, or do a good deed go by unimproved, for I shall not pass this way again." This reason is equally true for all. The step which we take to-day is not the step we shall take to-morrow. The door which opens for useful effort to-day, is not the door which will open to-morrow. The same opportunity comes but once.

Let us then improve these times and seasons, which pass so swiftly and surely, by giving heed to the admonition, to "work while the day lasts."

Whig and Courier.

BOUTELLE & BURR, PROPRIETORS.

C. A. BOUTELLE, Editor.

All business letters should be addressed to Boutelle & Burr, and communications intended for publication should be addressed, "Editor of Whig and Courier."

SATURDAY, JAN. 10, 1885.

Many members of the Maine Legislature entertain the opinion that the present session will be a short one.

Ex-Governor Leland Stanford declines to be a candidate for the United States Senatorship from California.

The New York Times thinks that Gov. Hill's address was "empty inane and utterly valueless." In a few weeks the Times will be indorsing this same Governor as a most brilliant statesman.

The "hungry and thirsty" have gone to work on the basis of Gov. Cleveland's letter to get a list of Republican office holders who contributed to the campaign fund in order that they may be removed as "offensive partisans."

[illegible] settlement of the speakership in the New York Assembly, without leaving any bitterness behind, shows how little the stories circulated in Democratic papers of fatal dissensions in the Republican party in that State.

[illegible] Ogilvie, of the Ohio State Republican Committee, has arrived in Washington. He says the party in the State is in good shape and confident of success at the next gubernatorial election. Judge Foraker, he thinks, may be the candidate.

[illegible], unlike most of the great States in the Union, has no registration law, and many of the frauds perpetrated in its elections are traced to this defect. A bill providing such a measure will be introduced into the Legislature this winter.

[illegible] of the New England Representatives except Mr. Lovering of Massachusetts, voted against the Reagan Inter-State Commerce Bill. It is reported that the Senate will take no action on the measure which will kill it so far as this Congress is concerned.

The free traders still insist that Mr. Cleveland is "one of them" and it is a horrible fact that Mr. Cleveland is still dumb on the subject, although he had a good opportunity to state his exact position when he denied that he was President of a free trade club.

The Washington Correspondent of the Baltimore Sun says that Southern men are well pleased with Mr. Cleveland's civil service reform letter, as it can be stretched so as to remove any Republican officeholder and then give the Bourbons a chance at the spoils.

Mr. Melvin F. Aley, Superintendent of Schools at Fort Dodge, Iowa, in writing to renew his subscription of the WEEKLY COURIER, says: "I used to think it the best local paper published anywhere, and after thirteen years further acquaintance with local papers, particularly in the West, I am of that opinion still."

[illegible] one of the best compliments that could have been given Speaker Hamlin's speech on accepting the nomination, is the adverse criticism that appears in the Democratic papers. This is a time for plain talk, and a speech from a Republican that would please the Democrats would hardly be very satisfactory to his constituents.

The New York World, which had its Conkling Senatorial boom in its hands, suggests Mr. Conkling as orator on the occasion of the dedication of the Washington Monument as Mr. Winthrop is sick. The World realizes the bad-iness of its "try on Mr. Conkling and means to hold its [illegible] a cancellation of the same by advertising.

Hon. John W. Daniel, of Virginia, has been selected by the Washington Monument Committee to deliver the oration before Congress at the Washington Monument dedication ceremonies, February 21. Mr. Winthrop's address will be read by some one designated by him. The Boston Herald says: Some years after the war was over Major Daniel was reported as declaring that the United States must have a king. He is a member-elect of the House.

The Springer Investigating Committee in Cincinnati is finding evidence of frauds perpetrated and frauds proposed, on the part of the Democrats of that city, but no evidence of any on the part of the Republicans. It is evident, says the Boston Traveller, that the deputy marshals, of whom complaint is made, held repeaters in check and protected honest voters. As usual, Mr. Springer's investigation is likely to prove another boomerang for his party.

The papers generally speak in the most favorable terms of Gov. Robie's address. The Kennebec Journal says: The address as a whole is one of the best ever issued in the State. It takes up nearly every subject connected with State affairs, and presents a comprehensive review of the public concerns. It is a document of the greatest value and importance. It will help the State at home and abroad, making our young men more contented to remain in the State of their birth, and elevating the commonwealth in the estimation of all communities in the Union.

It is reported that Mrs. Hopkins, widow of the late California railroad millionaire, Mark Hopkins, has made changes in the plans for her residence. She is to build in Great Barrington, Mass., and the cost of the house and grounds will be five millions of dollars. She intends to have the most expensive house in the United States. It will be built of blue stone from a quarry which she owns, and work will begin as soon as spring opens. Work at the quarry will be run night and day, using the electric light for night operations. One thousand men will be employed on the job for three years.

The "Mugs" are now fighting among themselves. The New York Times having said something that displeased the Evening Post, the latter unkindly asks: "Has the Times forgotten that it had to take back some very unpleasant observations which it made upon Gov. Cleveland soon after his entry into office?" The Post refers to the Times' remark that Mr. Cleveland was a "low priced reformer," "a parochial statesman" and the "tool of a desperate ring," etc. If these organs begin to twit on facts there will be music in the air. When the Post and Times call names it is much like the pot calling the kettle black, as it is six of one and half a dozen of the other.

The owners of Bangor ice are of the opinion that kerosene does not injure, but if anything improves its flavor. Why certainly, of course. Who ever knew an honest tradesman with a damaged stock of goods on hand who didn't assert that he had the finest line in the market? Or one who after selling the stock didn't go about declaiming against the fickleness of public taste?—Portland Argus.

The above is an unwarrantable fling that reflects little credit upon the writer. There is no one in this city that has any intention or desire to dispose of damaged ice. After a series of the most careful experiments our ice men, many of whom are prominent business men of unquestioned integrity, have reached the conclusion that the ice has not been injured, and if this proves to be the case, the usual crop will be harvested, and as a guarantee of the quality it will all be done under the inspection of a practical chemist. In trying to be funny the Argus shoots wide of the mark.

Maine's Executive Council, says the Lewiston Journal, is composed of solid men, well versed in State and business affairs. Hon. S. C. Hatch, of Bangor, the chairman, is a veteran servant of the public. He was fourteen years a member of the Bangor City Government, was State Treasurer for three years and has been a member of the council five years. Hon. Jos. A. Locke, of Portland, is the legal member of the board. He has served in both branches of the Legislature and was President of the Senate in the memorable session of 1880. Hon. A. R. Bixby, of Skowhegan, will be a working member. He is a splendid business man and a citizen whose public spirit has done much for Skowhegan. Capt. Jefferson, of Wilton, is a successful manufacturer and was a brave soldier. Dr. Smith, of Windsor, has had valuable experience in both the House and Senate. Hon. Lambert Sands, of Sebec, has performed legislative service and is the father of the council. Hon. S. M. Goodall, of Sanford, in the age of about 41 years, has been a member of each branch of the Legislature and is well known as one of the leading manufacturers of Maine.

Gossip About Cleveland.

HE WILL NOT FORGIVE THOSE WHO ALLUDED TO HIS BUFFALO EXPERIENCE—CARL SCHURZ AND THE CABINET.

An Albany special to the New York Tribune gives this interesting information: One of the grotesque features of the news which the Democratic "insiders" there are carefully laboring to keep out of the newspapers relates to the intense and poisonous hatred cherished by Governor Cleveland toward everybody who alluded to the Buffalo scandals concerning him during the campaign. William Purcell is his pet aversion. He has, however, carefully had a list of all the Democratic editors and politicians of all sorts who have in any way dealt with the subject carefully prepared for him by some of his newspaper friends, alphabetically arranged, and with the actual offence in each case posted against the offenders' name. This black list which the Governor is going to take to Washington will be one of the most interesting features of his Administration. People who think services to the party likely to condone little indiscretions of that sort will soon and permanently realize their mistake.

Another diverting thing here is the horror with which the Governor's desire to put Carl Schurz into the Cabinet is regarded. The Democrats are all up in arms about it, and can't understand why Cleveland should dream of such a thing. They make satirical references to the obvious Democratic losses in almost every place where Schurz spoke during the campaign, but none of these things move their new found statesman. They can't understand Schurz's hold, not knowing the thrifty methods of that alien patriot in taking time by the forelock when he deals with candidates. He made his arrangements with Hayes before he made any speeches for him, and the Democrats begin to fear that he played the same game this time. Still, Schurz would be so bitter a pill, and, so they think, so grave a source of weakness to the administration, that they are going to keep up the fight, and may make a suggestion. Possibly it is in the power of the Democratic party to keep Schurz out of the Cabinet, but it is not in its power to all its leaders, dead and alive, of the [illegible] of humanity, or any other crime, to get any forgiveness for the people who alluded to what is euphoniously called "the Buffalo Stories." When they thought that Cleveland had the idea of it [illegible] they were in a mistake.

How Protection Helps Agriculture.

[Boston Journal.]

Practically the only hope of the free trade advocates in this country is to persuade the farmers that the protective policy is hostile to their interests, and thus to array against it the great agricultural industry. As a matter of fact the antagonism which these free trade advocates find it convenient to assume, and which they seek to create and foster, has no solid basis of existence. The interests of agriculture and of manufactures are not isolated, but intertwined and mutually supporting, as any thoughtful examination of the history and statistics of both will show. On a point like this a little actual experience is worth reams of theory.

A case which is narrated in the Alabama Industrial may be cited as an instructive illustration. Among the cities in Alabama which have been marked by a rapid growth of manufactures in the last few years is Anniston. The case cited is that of a farmer, living eight miles from Anniston, and owning 320 acres of land, 110 of which were in cultivation. He raised cotton and grain, when the crops were good there was no demand for his grain, for every other farmer raised his own grain, and ninety per cent. of the population of Anniston were directly or indirectly engaged in agriculture. The only product for which he could find a market was his cotton, and that he sold at a distance. But with the growth of manufactures at Anniston the farmer's condition has changed. He finds at Anniston a ready market for every variety of produce, vegetables, fruits and grain, while he sells his cotton direct to the Anniston Cotton Mill and saves the cost of transportation. Nor is this all. Three years ago the farmer sold forty acres of timbered land at $1.00 per acre; six months ago he sold one hundred acres of the same character of land to the Clifton Iron Company at $5.00 per acre. The farmer has made a careful estimate of his position and concludes that the Morrison bill might have saved him a tariff tax of $11.00, but would have robbed him of a net income of not less than $250 per annum.

This Anniston farmer would be a good person to assail with Cobden Club literature. He would probably utilize it for the excellent purpose of kindling his fires. His experience has a counterpart in that of thousands of others. Wherever manufactures are planted, there a valuable market for the products of the soil is at once opened, and agriculture receives a fresh stimulus. The success of the factory means a rapidly improving market for the farmer. The adoption of a policy which would close the factory or make its operations unprofitable, means injury to the farmer. The spinners and weavers clothe the farmer and the farmer feeds the weavers and spinners, and so the interplay of industrial forces goes on, to the advantage of all concerned. The practically unfelt burdens of the tariff are vastly more than offset by the real and tangible advantages resulting from diversified industries.

The Post Office Department.

A Washington despatch says: The statistics of the calendar year now being collected, confirm the expectations of the Post Office Department concerning the effects of the reduction of letter postage, and indicate that the service will soon again be on a paying basis. The statistics for the last three months of 1884, better than any which have preceded them, will show the actual results of the change, and these, it is already known, will show that the reduction from three to two cents has caused a very perceptible and important abandonment of the use of postal cards and consequent increase in sales of stamps, and has also caused the almost universal use of the 2-cent stamp on closed envelopes instead of the 1-cent stamp and open circulars. These two important changes go far to compensate for the loss of revenue by the reduction of rates and exceed the expectations of the department.

The only subject of regret to the officials is that the reduced rates, while still in an experimental stage, should suffer from the effects of the business depression which always makes itself very apparent in the quantity of matter carried in the mails. The allowance for this cannot be estimated even approximately, but in spite of it the showing has been eminently satisfactory and proved the wisdom of the reduction of postal rates. The Post Office Department is emphatically in favor of the bill which has passed the House and is pending in the Senate providing that all second, third and fourth class mail matter on which one full postal rate has been paid, can be forwarded to the final place of destination without additional cost. Until recently such matter could not be forwarded at all, but under a recent ruling it is sent chargeable to the persons to whom it is received, and it is now proposed to remove all additional expense.

THE BANGOR DAILY WHIG AND COURIER will commence its fifty first volume January 1st, 1885, fully prepared to maintain its position as one of THE LEADING DAILY PAPERS OF NEW ENGLAND. It receives all the telegraphic news of the Maine Associated Press, and presents it to its readers daily in an attractive and reliable manner, and it employs an extensive corps of correspondents throughout the State, with special writers at the State and National capitals.

The publishers intend to make it in all respects a FIRST CLASS FAMILY NEWSPAPER, devoting care to the presentation of entertaining and instructive news and literary matter, to the encouragement of Agriculture, Manufacturing and other home interests, with original and selected stories and poetry, book reviews, and choice miscellany.

Its RESULTANT REPORTS will give the proceedings of Congress and the State Legislature, with telegraphic quotations of the Produce and Financial Markets, of Events at Augusta, this winter, will be chronicled at length by a thoroughly informed special correspondent.

IN THE FUTURE AS IN THE PAST, the Whig and Courier will continue to advocate the principles of the Republican Party, while claiming to be independent in the highest and best sense of the word. Fearless and outspoken in the treatment of all public questions it [illegible] what it believes to be right, it will avoid intolerance and make its appeal to the understanding rather than to prejudice. Realizing that in the future, as in the past, to give the earliest and most reliable information as to the [illegible] measures and policies as will best protect the rights and promote the welfare of all the people.

THE WHIG AND COURIER

will be sent to all, post-paid, at the following rates, invariably in advance: $7.00 per year, $1.00 for 1 month, $2.00 for 3 months; $1.50 for the session of the Legislature.

FROM BATH.

Accidental Shooting—The Verdict in the Stacy Case.

BATH, Jan. 9. The Coroner's Jury in the Stacy shooting affair, returned a verdict that Arnold C. Stacy came to his death January 7th, 1885, at 7.20 P. M., by the accidental discharge of a pistol in the hands of said Arnold C. Stacy and [illegible] wife, Annie [illegible] Stacy, the pistol ball entering the brain of said Stacy, causing nearly instantaneous death.

The Elbridge Randall Case—No Traces of Poison Discovered.

The testimony in the Elbridge Randall inquest is all in and the jury adjourned till to-morrow without a verdict. The inquest has occupied four days, but the hearing has been private. It is rumored that Prof. Carmichael's analysis of the stomach of the deceased disclosed no poison. The case has attracted much attention since the disinterment of the body in April last, one week after burial, at the instigation of relatives, who suspected foul play on the part of interested legatees of his will.

FROM AUGUSTA.

The State Grange Committee.

AUGUSTA, Jan. 9. The Executive Committee of the State Grange continued in session to-day. The trade resolutions of C. W. Jones, Vassalboro, were under consideration, printing was arranged for, the matter of future work was talked up and it was decided to put organizers into the field. The committee were to attend an installation of officers and a county meeting of the Grange at Bowdoinham this evening.

FROM MEXICO.

A Change in the Stamp Law.

CITY OF MEXICO, Jan. 9. The old stamp law, which was so oppressive to commerce, has been abolished and a new law enacted. Articles destined for exportation are not liable to the stamp. The new ordinance removes the abuses of the old and will be a relief to commerce.

WISCONSIN.

Ex-Governor Washburn's Will.

LACROSSE, Wis., Jan. 9. Judge Gunderson in the Probate Court has granted an order in the famous Washburn estate case, authorizing the executors to purchase $100,000 in United States [illegible] per cent bonds, the income on which is to be applied to the support of the widow. The annual income will be $7,770. Ex-Governor C. C. Washburn died in 1882, leaving an estate of $2,000,000, and merely authorizing the executors to care for Mrs. Washburn, who has been in an eastern insane asylum for years. Litigation in Wisconsin and Minnesota ensued, to break the will, and the decision to-day is the final result of litigation involving the question of the widow's share of the estate under the will.

The Motives of Phelan's Assassination.

NEW YORK, Jan. 9. The attempted assassination of Phelan has caused a great sensation. The interview in which Phelan was supposed to have betrayed the secrets of the dynamiters and which was published in the Kansas City Journal, contained a statement from Phelan in which he told about the attempt to blow up the steamer Queen, at her Liverpool dock, also about the attempt to blow up the Caledonia Railroad station in Glasgow and mentioned the names of the men who were concerned in those jobs. Kearney's name was mentioned as the chief projector.

Phelan went to England shortly after Carey was made infamous as an informer and it was for some time supposed that as he is a crack shot with the rifle and pistol he had gone there to execute vengeance on Carey, and the name of O'Donnell was believed to be an alias for Phelan. Phelan came near to being transported for life when in England and escaped to America in disguise.

SALT LAKE.

Democratic Mormons in Council.

SALT LAKE, Jan. 9. A large and enthusiastic meeting was held last night by the Democratic clubs, composed of young men of prominent Mormon families. Alfales Young, son of the late President, Brigham Young, was a prominent speaker. He said, "Here is a complete union of church and State." A Mormon cried out, "A lie." Young responded "I guess it is, the church has absorbed the State." A number of others spoke in the same vein. The meeting was the talk of the town to-day.

Probably Fatally Stabbed: Then [illegible] Affair in Ireland.

NEW YORK, Jan. 9. Thomas Phelan, said to be supposed [illegible] of the [illegible] was stabbed and [illegible] fatally wounded, in the office of O'Donovan Rossa, to-day, by [illegible] named Barry. The men quarreled over an interview [illegible] affairs. Barry [illegible] and Phelan was taken to the Chambers street Hospital, where it is thought he will die.

Further Particulars.

It is learned that Phelan was [illegible] as a traitor by the dynamiters, and [illegible] was sent him, it is said, to come to New York. It was believed that he had betrayed the secrets by having them published in the form of an interview. When Phelan reached New York he was met by John P. Kearney and escorted to Rossa's office, where, on his arrival, he was attacked. [illegible] he was struck [illegible] While the officer held the prisoner [illegible] Phelan suddenly drew a revolver and fired at the prisoner, but missed him.

At first Ambrose the prisoner gave the name of Richard Short, butcher. [illegible] the pistol shot fired by Phelan was found to be slight. The prisoner was locked up. Meanwhile Phelan lay on the sidewalk. [illegible] should [illegible] An ambulance took the man to the Chambers Street Hospital. His clothing was cut in several places, [illegible] were wounds [illegible]. His right arm was almost severed at the shoulder.

In an ante-mortem statement from the bed by the corporation hospital Phelan declares that the man who assaulted him was named Richard Short [illegible] men with [illegible] O'Donovan Rossa, who, when questioned, pretended to be ignorant, but [illegible].

O'Donovan Rossa lives in the outskirts of Brooklyn. [illegible] at his door late to-night brought no response. A [illegible] has said he had lately heard talk of "treachery" among certain parties, [illegible] was suspicious that [illegible] should so far forget themselves as to fight. He was sure that Rossa knew nothing about the [illegible] and if Rossa had been present the stabbing would have been prevented. At [illegible] hour to-night Phelan's condition had not improved and it is believed by the physicians that he will die.

At one o'clock this (Saturday) morning the surgeons at the Hospital said they entertained hopes of Phelan's recovery. They discovered three additional wounds in the patient's head, making twelve in all.

Result of a Bar-room Fight—One Man Killed and Another Fatally Wounded.

LOUISVILLE, Ky., Jan. 9. In a bar-room fight, this morning, Frederick Eckler was killed, and [illegible] Smith fatally shot. Smith hit Eckler in the head with a brick, killing him instantly. As Smith turned to walk out of the saloon, Eckler's brother, [illegible], shot him through the neck. The parties are colored. [illegible] Eckler was arrested.

Wholesale Poisoning at a Party.

PITTSBURG, Jan. 9. A special to the Chronicle Telegraph from East Liverpool, Ohio, says: At a party at which eleven persons were present, was given last night, at the residence of Mr. Van Vassen. During the evening coffee was passed around, and soon after drinking it all became violently ill with symptoms of poisoning. Investigation proved this to be true, and the bottom of the coffee pot was found a paper of "Rough on Rats." One of the victims, a child and niece of Mr. Van [illegible], died at midnight, and others are not expected to live. From the fact that Miss Annie Van Vassen is not so sick as the others she is suspected of being the guilty person. A searching investigation is in progress and intense excitement prevails.

MISSOURI.

Mr. Phelan's Antecedents.

KANSAS CITY, Jan. 9. The news of the stabbing of Capt. Phelan, in New York, created quite a stir in this city. Only a few friends were aware of his visit to New York. Phelan took exceptions to comments in O'Donovan Rossa's paper on the interview published here and left for New York City Tuesday night, with the intention, it is stated, of asking an explanation or retraction of them. He has been a resident here since 1864. He served in the Federal army during the war and has figured conspicuously in local politics. He has always been an ardent supporter of the Irish cause and a man of violent temper.

ARKANSAS.

To Fill a Vacancy.

LITTLE ROCK, Jan. 9. The Democratic State Executive Committee to-day unanimously elected S. W. Fordyce for Arkansas member of the Democratic National Committee, vice Judge Cockrell, resigned.

Forty-Eighth Congress—Second Session.

Senate.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 9. The chair laid before the Senate a letter from the Secretary of the Navy, transmitting a copy of the report of the board of officers appointed last summer to examine the comparative merits of anthracite and bituminous coal for naval use.

The Senate passed a bill authorizing the distribution of copies of the United States statutes and the Congressional Record to public libraries and other institutions authorized to receive public documents.

Mr. Cameron, of Pennsylvania, from the Committee on Naval Affairs, reported favorably, and the Senate passed, a bill directing the transfer of one of the vessels of the Greely relief expedition to the Treasury Department for a revenue cutter, for use in the waters of Alaska, and authorizing the retention of the other two for use in the Navy as surveying vessels, or otherwise.

Mr. McPherson inquired whether there was any intention on the part of the Government to return to the English Government the ship presented by the latter Government to the United States for the purpose of the Greely relief expedition.

Mr. Cameron replied that he was not informed on that point, but under the laws as it would stand without the passage of this bill, the Secretary of the Navy would be required to sell all ships forming a part of the relief expedition.

Mr. Jackson, from the committee on Pensions, reported favorably without amendment, the bill yesterday introduced by Mr. Allison, comprising the legislative provisions of the pension appropriation bill as early passed by the House. Mr. Jackson said he would call up the bill to-morrow.

A resolution offered by Mr. Sherfield was agreed to calling on the Secretary of War to report to the Senate whether any private person is in occupancy of Fort Green, at Newport, R. I., and if so by what authority, and if the Government had no present use for the fort, why it might not be turned over to the city of Newport, to be used as a public park, and held subject to the future needs of the Government.

Mr. Slater called up the Oregon Central land forfeiture bill and Mr. Morgan withdrew his motion to reconsider. The bill therefore stands passed as amended by the Senate. It now goes to the House.

The Senate proceeded to the consideration of bills on its calendar.

After debate without result on the bill for private relief, the Senate resumed the consideration of the Inter-State Commerce bill.

Mr. Garland called up the House bill on the same subject with the view he said of moving to recommit the Senate bill with all its amendments together with the House bill, to the Committee on Railroads for further consideration. The House bill was read by its title and Mr. Garland addressed the Senate on the subject in favor.

Mr. Garland said the House bill declared what was unlawful and did not leave it to any subordinate officer or Commissioner. It did not delegate the power of Congress to any other body and so it left the matter within the Constitution. After further debate the motion to recommit was rejected, 12 to 23.

Mr. Cullom said that when after discussion the Senate bill should be perfected, he would move to amend the House bill by substituting the Senate bill for it.

Mr. Vance proposed an amendment making it unlawful for railroads to charge small shippers higher rates than large shippers. Mr. George supported the amendment.

Mr. Brown moved to amend the amendment by adding that no merchant shall sell a large package or quantity of goods at smaller percent than he charges for smaller packages of goods of like quality if the goods have been produced in or transported from another State so as to fall within the power of Congress to regulate inter-State commerce. Before Mr. Brown's amendment [illegible] the Senate went into executive session and within [illegible] minutes the doors reopened and the Senate adjourned to Monday.

House.

The Speaker announced the appointment of Mr. Williams, of Ala., a member of the Committee on Ventilation and Acoustics, also the appointment of Mr. Tucker of Va. and Mr. Ryan of Kansas as directors of the Columbia Institution for Deaf and Dumb.

The House by a vote of 67 to 95, refused to take up the Naval Appropriation bill, and the Speaker proceeded to call the committees for reports of a private character.

A large number of private bills were reported and placed on the appropriate calendar.

Mr. Curtin, of Pennsylvania, from the Committee on Foreign Affairs, reported a resolution calling for information from the Executive as to the arrest of [illegible] an American citizen, by the Government of Mexico. Adopted. Mr. Curtin also reported the Belmont resolution calling on the President for information related to the Congo conference. Adopted. Also a resolution calling on the President for copies of all correspondence between this Government and Prussia in regard to the French and American Claims Commission since the 23d of November, 1884. Adopted. Also a resolution calling on the Secretary of State for a detailed statement of the expenditure of the amount appropriated for the expenses of the French and American Claims Commission. Adopted.

Mr. O'Neill, of Pa., presented petitions of the board of trade of Philadelphia, asking for the passage of the Lowell bankrupt bill; referred. Also a memorial of the Pennsylvania Club, of Philadelphia, urging the [illegible] of [illegible] bill; referred.

The House then, at 1.10, on motion of Mr. McMillan, of Tenn., went into Committee of the Whole on the private calendar.

At 4.45 the committee rose and the following bills were passed: For the relief of A. H. Hart, Sarah E. Webster, John M. Dorsey, and Wm. L. Shepherd, of Texas, A. D. Schenck, Yost Harbaugh, John J. Sevelance and Wm. W. Tibbetts, for relief of the legal representatives of A. J. Gatlich.

Mr. Breckenridge, of Arkansas, introduced a bill for the appointment of a southwestern river commission, referred. The House then took a recess until 8 P. M.

The House at its evening session passed 21 pension bills and at 10.25 adjourned until to-morrow.

Yesterday was another fair warm day, and the ice and lumber dealers are earnestly wishing for cold weather and snow. That is certainly what is most needed at this season of the year.

Another special coal train from the schooner [illegible] came up from Bucksport yesterday. Thus far fifty car loads of coal have come up and there are twenty more to come.

Mr. Jacob C. Corlett, of Winterport, was seriously injured about the head and hip by the falling of a tree, while at work in the woods at [illegible]. He holds an accident policy in the Travelers' Insurance Company.

There will be a wrestling match at Norumbega Hall on Friday evening Jan. 16th between H. M. Dufur, champion of America and G. W. Flagg, champion of Vermont. Mr. Dufur gave a very satisfactory exhibition here some time ago.

The union prayer meetings, which have been held every afternoon this week, for a three [illegible] have been well attended and have been very interesting. To-morrow the subject of the meeting will be prayer for Missions and Rev. P. Gerrish will lead the meeting.

Among the freight of the steamer Longfellow, which arrived at Mount Desert Ferry from Annapolis on Tuesday morning last were a car load of potatoes and apples in transit for Boston, via New York, and another car load of Chaudiere and smoked herring for Charlotte, [illegible] Island [illegible].

There was a very spirited runaway on Hammond street yesterday noon. A young horse attached to a wagon in which a man was seated ran down Hammond street hill and into Franklin street where he collided with a two horse team and the man was thrown out, but not injured. The wagon received injuries [illegible] beyond that no damage was done.

Charles Hamlin, Jr., has arrived at Freiburg, Saxony, where Mr. Addison Hamlin, is sick, and cablegrams have been received from him saying that the health of his brother is much improved. This is of course very gratifying to Gen. and Mrs. Hamlin and their many friends rejoice with them in receiving such good news.

Locomotive No. 75 of the Maine Central has gone into the shops where it will be thoroughly overhauled, repaired and repainted and a new tender will be built. This locomotive has been built fifteen years and during that time has only been into the shop twice for repairs. It was built at the Portland Company's works.

Mr. Patten Coffin of East Eddington, found the dead bodies of two deer in the woods near Amherst a few days ago. Their horns were very firmly interlocked and it appeared as though they had been fighting and became so attached and perished. The horns have not been taken apart and will be brought to this city and placed on exhibition at Mr. L. S. Bowler's Natural History store on Main street.

Mr. B. F. Osgood, of Prentiss, the past season raised 2,628 bushels of oats, 55 tons of hay, and other crops in proportion. He has nineteen horses and cattle, 28 head of cattle and 85 sheep. Mr. Osgood has eleven sons who are all at home to help him. Mr. Osgood this winter is doing a large lumber business, and has forty men and twenty-four horses in the woods. He hauls into the Mattawamkeag river.

We are pleased to know that a first-class orchestra has recently been organized here under the leadership of Mr. J. B. Dinsmore, recently of Bangor. Mr. Dinsmore is an experienced teacher and fine musician and singer—singing at present in the Baptist choir. The orchestra includes some of our best musical talent and will make its first public appearance at the reproduction of the "Water Cure," next Tuesday evening.—Waterville Sentinel.

NEW LODGE. "Brusque" writes: A lodge of Good Templars was instituted at Friendship, Wednesday evening January 7th, by M. J. Dow, of Brooks. They are to meet Monday evenings. The officers are as follows: L. D., Ulysses Wallace; W. C. T., Leslie Thompson; W. V. T., Georgia C. Morton; W. S., Samuel W. Davis; W. A. S., Jessie Hamlin; W. F. S., Ralph Davis, W. T., Viola Clark; W. C., Mrs. Carrie Whitney; W. M., Charles Morton; W. D. M., Mabel Winchpaw; W. I. G., Amanda Poland; W. O. G., Victor Thompson; P. W. C. T., James, Winchpaw; W. R. H. S., Laura Geyer; W. L. H. S., Helen Whitney.

We have received from J. S. Ogilvie, & Co., of New York, a book entitled "1,500 Conundrums."

Rev. Asa Dalton, of Portland, will lecture before the Central Club on Monday evening, on Dante.

A FINE GARMENT. Happening to drop into the fur store of Geo. W. Sullivan, yesterday, a WHIG reporter was shown a very handsome cloak which had just been trimmed with light beaver fur by Mr. Sullivan. The garment was made for an Orono lady, and all who have seen it have pronounced it one of the handsomest cloaks of the kind ever seen in this city. The fine trimming and the nice work done on the cloak reflects great credit upon Mr. Sullivan's establishment and workmen.

President M. C. Fernald, of the State College has been tendered the Presidency of one of the most flourishing and richly endowed of the Western agricultural colleges, at a salary of $3,000. Fortunately he has decided not to sever his connection with our college at the present critical period, but will continue to give it that efficient effort which has, during the years of his executive administration, brought the institution so rapidly forward in its prosperity.

EX-GOV. COBURN'S WILL. A special despatch to the Lewiston Journal from Waterville says: "The statements circulating respecting Gov. Coburn's will are without authority. The will will not be opened until the spring term of the Probate court at Skowhegan to be held early next week. The reports thus far circulated are simply guesses or inferences." Notwithstanding this we learn on reliable authority that ex-Gov. Coburn left $50,000 to the Maine State College. Of the amount of his bequest to Colby University we have not yet learned.

UNION MEETINGS. The pastors of the city, feeling anxious to do more for the spiritual good of the people, have decided to hold a series of Sabbath afternoon Union Gospel revival meetings beginning at 2.30 and closing at 3.45. The first meeting will be at the Columbia street church. There will be a short sermon by one of the pastors to be followed by prayer, praise and exhortation. A cordial invitation is given to all and a request to bring Nos. 1 and 2 of Gospel Hymns. Meetings will begin to-morrow, and the aid of all earnest Christians is desired.

A BAD WEAPON. Hiram S. Maxim, a native of Sangerville, has invented a self-acting machine gun capable of firing 400 rounds a minute or ten shots a second, and when once started the deadly work will keep up this terrific fire without any human agency to keep the belts supplied with cartridges. The recoil of the gun, by an ingenious automatic arrangement, throws out the empty shells, brings another into place and fires. The machine can be supplied to any direction, and the [illegible] may be turned back and forth by means of [illegible].—Bangor Herald.

MILO ITEMS. "Our correspondent (H.) writes: The business of this place is having a serious drawback on account of the lack of sufficient snow for teaming purposes. Amusement Notes.

Mr. Denman Thompson, is suffering greatly from the attacks of his old enemy, the rheumatism, and he proposes to take a two months' vacation in the balmy climate of Florida. He will, however, first fulfill his engagement at the Boston Theatre in March. Mr. Thompson will play in this city in the late spring.

Manager J. M. Hill proposes to introduce Miss Margaret Mather to New York playgoers for the first time in October next at the Union Square Theatre, where she will remain thirteen weeks or more. He intends to produce all the plays in which she appears in the highest possible excellence of scenery, costume and appointments, without regard to expense, and will give each a run of one, two, three or more weeks, as circumstances, may warrant. Miss Mather has had a very successful season thus far, not having played a single week that has not brought profits to the management. Miss Mather will play a two-night engagement at our Opera House early in March.

Sunday Services.

Rev. N. H. Harriman will occupy the pulpit at the First Baptist Church at the usual hour Sunday morning, and will also deliver the address at the fifty-sixth anniversary of the Sunday School, which will occur in the evening at 7.30 o'clock.

Mr. and Mrs. Pierson, the revivalists, of Boston, and Revs. Gerrish and Boss, of this city, will take part in the Sunday temperance meeting in City Hall. President-elect Page will conduct the exercises.

The subject of the sermon at St. John's Episcopal Church, Jan. 11th, at the 10.30 A. M. service, will be "The Epiphany." The subject of the lecture at the 3.30 P. M. service will be "The Living Sacrifice." Strangers will find a welcome.

The 56th anniversary of the First Baptist Sunday School occurs on Sunday evening, at 7 o'clock.

Services will be held Sunday, at 3 P. M., at the Home for Aged Women conducted by Prof. C. J. H. Ropes, of the Seminary.

Professor Ropes, of the Seminary, will preach at the First Parish church to-morrow morning, service at half past ten.

There will be a New Year's Sunday School concert at the Central church to-morrow evening, the address to be given by Rev. J. B. Merrill, of Brewer.

The subject of discourse Sunday morning at the First Methodist church, will be, "Christ, Our Example." There will be preaching service at 7 P. M. Text: "And it was now dark and Jesus was not come to them."—John 6:17.

The subject of the discourse at the Unitarian church to-morrow morning will be: The Atheism of Common Life.

A RAYMOND EXCURSION TO MEXICO.

It will be seen by reference to an advertisement in another column that Messrs. Raymond & Whitcomb have added Mexico to their grand list of excursion points. A party will leave Boston for an extensive tour through that interesting country, Thursday, February 26. The arrangements are upon a most elaborate scale, and offer not only comfort and enjoyment, but a far more extended trip of observation than individual travellers are accustomed to make. The whole length of the Mexican Central Railway and large portions of the Mexican and the National Railways are to be traversed. A special train of Pullman cars will convey the travellers everywhere, and a dining-car will be attached for the greater part of the way. Upwards of a dozen cities will be visited, and nearly a fortnight will be passed in the National Capital. The party will be absent 44 days. Circulars giving full details may be had by addressing W. Raymond, 240 Washington Street, Boston.

A Railroad Experience.

It was the second week in October last, and I had just returned from a delightful continental campaign when urgent family matters necessitated my immediate presence in Ireland.

"I shall have to start by the 8:25 from Euston to-night," I remarked to a clerical friend who had just dropped in to welcome me back to London.

"I'll come and see you off," he replied, promptly. "But it is too bad to lose you so soon after your return."

"I don't suppose I shall be very long in Ireland," I remarked, again reading over the letter in my hand. "Although I might stay, and go and hear some of those trials that are coming on soon."

I had so much to see to during the few hours at my disposal that Mr. Chasuble soon took his departure, promising to call for me in time for the Irish mail. I waited until the last minute, but he did not put in an appearance. Finally, not a little piqued at being so treated, I went off, like the legendary woman I am, and soon myself and my traveling impedimenta were comfortably ensconsed in a second class carriage at Euston. I laid the compartment all to myself, upon which I congratulated my lucky stars, as I had devised that the three or four other second-class carriages were pretty fully occupied. Looking at my watch I found that it yet wanted eight minutes to the time of starting, so I decided to walk up the platform and give a look for my faithless friend. Sure enough there he was, hurrying down the platform. He was profuse in apologies. I forget what they were. I believe I considered his excuses valid and forgave his breach of faith.

"Going the whole way, miss?" inquired he, approaching me and touching his hat.

"Yes," I replied, "I am going over by Holyhead mail to Dublin."

"Thank you, miss," and he walked back.

"I am so glad, Mr. Chasuble," I said, that I have a compartment all to myself. I like to take off my hat, lie my head in a shawl, and lie down and make myself comfortable."

"Quite so," he assented. "I see that in the foot warmers; don't you think you had better take your seat?" [illegible] was looking into the carriages as he was speaking, and passed the cab in which the rugs and shawls were deposited.

"Which is your carriage?" he asked, looking in to each one. "They seem to be more or less alike."

"This is mine," I replied, indicating the carriage he had just passed. "What a distance," I added. "In an adjoining compartment there is some man in the far corner; he is one of since I got out."

Two minutes more and the train steamed away out of the station. Mr. Chasuble stood by the side of the carriage, and I sat chatting to him out of the window till he could go no farther. I threw up the window, drew down the blinds and arranged myself near the lamp in order to improve my mind by the perusal of the last number of London Society, and scarcely glanced at my travelling companion. Of course, there is no use denying it, I began to feel very hungry. The mental dinner had not refreshed me physically, and I longed to attack the sandwiches with which I had been careful to provide myself.

I laid down the paper, retreated into my corner, and looked at my companion. I was in the corner of the opposite seat, at the far end of the compartment. Suddenly it struck me that there was something odd in the way in which he was wrapped up on the seat. He was evidently a tall, powerful man—I could see that plainly. I sat with his back on the line with the door, and his legs stretched out on the seat. I noticed that he wore a tall hat, and slouched over his forehead, a hat not quite [illegible] and the [illegible]. He was in an attack on the [illegible] unconvincing. He wore a very dark overcoat, inside of which was tied a soft, warm-looking cashmere neckerchief, his hands were hidden under the Turkish worked rugs, which he had wrapped from his waist to his feet. His eyes were closed. I congratulated myself upon the latter fact, and furtively noted every [illegible].

My companion evidently slept on soundly. He never moved a muscle. It might have been a wax-figure of a good-looking man of about forty, with a short brown beard and slight moustache. My impression is that I am somewhat of a romantic creature—my friends call it romantic, my enemies hysterical—and I could not avoid wondering in my imagination about him. The [illegible] was wondering as to the mystery as that one [illegible] there for a moment, and made no movement, not even the faintest flicker of an eyelid. I wondered whether he were alive or dead.

All this time I had not lain down. I had been dipping into the magazine on the rack, but feeling a little tired, I proceeded to take off my hat, put a little shawl over my head, and then settle myself in the seat in pretty much the same position as my motionless fellow traveler. There I sat looking at him. It is almost incredible, but [illegible] I began to think of all the horrible crimes I had ever heard of in connection with railroad traveling, and I wondered if this man was only pretending to be asleep, and then, when I was off my guard, he would seize me, rob me, and perhaps murder me. Or could it be that he really was dead, and in some way or other his murderers had managed to place him in the carriage? It also occurred that he might be under the influence of some narcotic, and even one of the rubbers thought forced their way into my brain. But one resolution I formed: I would adhere to—I would not fall asleep on any account whatever.

We stopped at a station for a minute or two. I drew aside the blinds and looked out. The mail-bags were handed in; off we went with the speed of the wind, but my companion made no sign. Like the spirit of Banquo [illegible], I regret to say, took my part in mind refusing to rest. I despite my good resolutions, I succumbed to the blandishments of the drowsy god and was soon fast asleep.

Something or other during my life I had got a book on the philosophy of dreams, which the writer said that dreams, no matter what period of time they seem to have extended over, always occurred at the moment of waking. I cannot vouch for the theory. I only know that I began dreaming that my fellow traveler was after me, that he was dragging at my falling, and so vivid did it seem was the fear that I started up with a little scream. I found my heavy railway rug slipping off me from the oscillation of the carriage, and, glancing at my companion, to perceive that his hat was slightly raised and his eyes were wide open.

Yet his position was unchanged; he was evidently unconscious of my presence. Apparently he never took the least notice of my scream, but I stared at me with a pair of the most beautiful dark, beautiful, fawnlike, soft brown eyes it has been my lot to behold in the head of any human being.

I again seated myself on the seat and tried to concentrate my attention upon my magazine. But it was of no use. Ever and anon my restless and inquisitive eyes wandered from the pages before me and rested upon the man at the end of the apartment. The large, beautiful brown eyes were fixed upon me. Now and again the lids drooped heavily over them, but whenever the eyes were raised he surveyed me with the same strange, mournful gaze.

Suddenly the speed of the train became slower. I tried to recollect the next station we were to stop at. I had an indistinct idea that we had passed Stafford, and so the next station would be Chester. The fixed stare of the motionless man was making me thoroughly nervous, therefore as I knew the train delayed for a few minutes at Chester, I determined to call the guard and change carriages.

We drew up at the platform, and I hurriedly put on my hat and pulled up the blind. But as I did so I recollected how crowded the other carriages were, and I certainly had no valid excuse for wishing to shift my quarters. Yet it was humiliating to think that I, Ardath Bricks, honorary secretary to the British Spinsters' Society for the Reformation of Man, should thus be cowed merely by the eye of one of those whom I had vowed to bring into subjection.

While I deliberated I lost my opportunity. The engine gasped, snorted and groaned, and away we were again whirled into the darkness of the night. I did not settle myself to sleep again. I felt too painfully wide awake to do so. There I sat, with my hands in the pocket of my ulster, my feet on the now stone-cold foot-warmer, and my eyes on the man in the corner, who fascinated me as though he were a snake and I some helpless animal he wanted to [illegible].

Should I speak to him? I asked myself. Somewhat suddenly restless did I become that I could not sit still. I stood up, let down that window, and again looked out. From having so often travelled by the same route, I knew quite well the part of the country we had arrived at. We were rushing through Wales, and I knew there was no stoppage until the tickets were collected. I sat down again, and another half hour passed away in the same manner without my having mustered up courage enough to address my fellow-traveler. I closed my eyes to shut out the gaze of his, when I was aroused by a thundering roar.

I started up. My companion was motionless as before, although we were careering madly through the great tubular bridge over the Menai Straits. My heart was beating violently, and when we had got some distance on terra firma again, I arose, walked over to him and said:

"Don't you find this long railway journey very fatiguing?"

Perhaps he thought the question too friendly, for he did not reply; or, as I was determined not to be baffled, and I returned to the attack!

"You must find it particularly tiresome sitting there in one position," I said in my most direct and insinuating tones.

No reply, but the dark, soft, mournful eyes looked into mine. "Flesh and blood—at least my flesh and blood—could stand it no longer. I seized his arm, gave it a good shake, and almost shrieked:

"What is the matter with you? Are you mad, or deaf, or something or what?"

At my touch the hitherto motionless figure seemed as though galvanized into life. Slowly he withdrew his hands, slowly he divested himself of his rugs, slowly he arose from his seat and stood calmly before me—a man of splendid physique, with his arms hanging loosely by his sides.

There he stood, and there I stood looking at him. He swayed to and fro from the motion of the carriage, but I had not the attempt to steady himself.

"Sir!" I exclaimed, in some trepidation, "I hope I have not disturbed you. Won't you sit down again?" I inquired hospitably, touching his arm.

Instead of which the colossal figure followed me down the compartment, several steps. Not a muscle of his face moved, and his eyes were very fastened upon me. I retreated into my corner terror-stricken, while over me stood this stony-looking Frankenstein which I had raised and had not the power to lay.

I am ashamed to confess that so what I was almost lost control over myself, but very nearly fainted. At length the train stopped, and [illegible] and the guard entered the carriage where I sat more dead than alive.

"Oh, dear me," exclaimed the clergyman, in a distressed voice, "I hope my poor brother did not annoy you. We did not think he would move; he never does unless touched."

"I put him here," said the guard, "because there was only the lady, and she was going the whole way. I would do, of course, put him where there were lots of passengers."

I told my story. The clergyman told me that of my Frankenstein. Twice a year the latter made the same journey, being placed in the carriage at the end of the route and met by some one at the other end. He lived six months at a time with each of his brothers—one lived in London and one in Wales. He was their eldest brother and he was deaf, dumb and blind.

WARREN LELAND,

whom everybody knows as the successful manager of the Largest Hotel Enterprises

of America, says that while a passenger from New York on board a ship going around Cape Horn, in the early days of emigration to California, he learned that one of the officers of the vessel had cured himself, during the voyage, of an obstinate disease by the use of

Ayer's Sarsaparilla.

Since then Mr. LELAND has recommended AYER'S SARSAPARILLA in many similar cases, and he has never yet heard of its failure to effect a radical cure.

Some years ago one of Mr. LELAND'S farm laborers bruised his leg. Owing to the bad state of his blood, an ugly scrofulous swelling or lump appeared on the injured limb. Horrible itching of the skin, with burning and darting pains through the lump, made life almost intolerable. The leg became enormously enlarged, and running ulcers formed, discharging great quantities of extremely offensive matter. No treatment was of any avail until the man, by Mr. LELAND'S direction, was supplied with AYER'S SARSAPARILLA, which allayed the pain and irritation, healed the sores, removed the swelling, and completely restored the limb to use.

Mr. LELAND has personally used for Rheumatism, with entire success; and, after careful observation, declares that, in his belief, there is no medicine in the world equal to it for the cure of Liver Disorders, Gout, the effects of High Living, Salt Rheum, Sores, Eruptions, and all the various forms of blood diseases.

We have Mr. LELAND'S permission to invite all who may desire further evidence in regard to the extraordinary curative powers of AYER'S SARSAPARILLA to see him personally either at his mammoth Ocean Hotel, Long Branch, or at the popular Leland Hotel, Broadway, 27th and 28th Streets, New York. Mr. LELAND'S extensive knowledge of the good done by this unequalled eradicator of blood poisons enables him to give inquirers much valuable information.

LETTER CARRIERS.

All letters are delivered five by carriers when addressed to street and number. People should inform their correspondents of above and have their letters addressed accordingly.

Persons leaving their addresses at the General Delivery can also have their letters sent, but it is much more convenient to have the street and number, and they will be delivered earlier than if the same is put on at the office. Carriers make two deliveries daily, the first trip supplying the extreme of their routes.

Collections are made morning, noon and evening in season for important mails.

Holidays the Carrier's Window will be open for delivery of letters from 8 to 9½ A. M., and from 8 to 8½ P. M. Sundays from 8½ to 9½ A. M.

Any irregularities in the Carrier's department should be reported to the office.

ENVELOPES.

No additional charge will be made for printing the name and request to return, across the left hand upper corner of the envelopes furnished by the Post Office Department, as samples of which may be seen at the Cashier's window, when ordered in lots of not less than 500.

A request for the return of a letter to the writer, if uncalled for within thirty days or less, written or printed, with the writer's name, post office and State, across the left end of the envelope on the outside, will be complied with.

The public are earnestly recommended to use Stamped Envelopes with printed return request, as the expense is less, and letters thus addressed, if not delivered to the person addressed, are returned to the writer free of charge.

First class envelopes of above furnished at $22.20 per thousand.

Stamps cut from stamped Envelopes are not to be used to prepay postage. The use of such stamps is punishable by a fine of fifty dollars.

Stamped Envelopes, spoiled in directing, are redeemed at this office.
